The Foulane family is excited as they travel to Mecca, led by their kind guide, Abou Layla. Along the way, he smiles and takes them to a special place he loves – a quiet, shady spot surrounded by tall trees. There, they sit together, ready to enjoy a delicious meal with tasty foods from the region!

Sitting cozily on soft cushions under the open sky, the happy family gazes at a colourful feast before them – juicy red watermelon slices, sweet golden dates fresh from the tree, and warm, fluffy bread, ready to enjoy!

"Hmm, that looks delicious!" exclaims Abi.

"It looks heavy, too," Walad jokes.

With their bellies full, Walad grows restless and wanders off to explore. Soon, he rushes back, bursting with excitement. He has discovered something incredible – a real volcano!
He eagerly shares that Arabia is home to hundreds of them. Binti listens in awe, amazed by the unexpected discovery.

"They're macaques!" Abou Layla explains as they drive off quickly. "They live around here, but remember, these little tricksters are still wild animals."

"Wow, what an adventure," Oummi says, still catching her breath. Monkeys in Arabia – who would have thought? And so, the family continues down the road, their hearts still racing from all the unexpected surprises of the day.

A few kilometres later, they finally reach the sacred land of Mecca! The children hold their breath as the towering Clock Tower comes into view, standing proudly, marking the place where the Kaaba awaits. Excitement spreads through the family, their hearts pounding with emotion. Even the parents, overwhelmed with joy, can't hide their trembling smiles.

After quickly dropping their bags off at the hotel, the family hurries towards the Grand Mosque. The courtyard is full of people, but Abi has a secret:

He knows a quiet little entrance on the side, hidden from most pilgrims.
